Hoto is a traditional local dish representative of Yamanashi in which plain noodles are cooked with miso-based soup and seasonal vegetables. It is a dish we highly recommend. And don’t forget to try “Yoshida-no-udon” in the Fuji Five Lakes area, including Fujikawaguchiko Town. It features noodles that are strong in texture and miso or soy sauce-based soup. It is particularly popular among people in this town.

Tradition of eating horsemeat

The Fuji Five Lakes area, including Fujikawaguchiko Town, has a long tradition of eating horse meat. Speaking of horses, it is held at Fuji-Omuro-Sengen-jinja Shrine in Katsuyama district every April “Kai no Katsuyama Yabusame Matsuri”. It is said that it was dedicated in the riding ground of Mount Fuji in old days. This area is the base of Mt. Fuji worship. Horses were very useful for climbers to carry bags. Even now, the townspeople love horse meat. In butcher shops, Basashi horse meat sashimi is lined up, and eaten as a little luxury at celebrations or parties. There are also many restaurants that serves local gourmet called “Yoshida no udon” noodle(Introduced on page 11.).These noodles are often topped with salty-sweet stewed horse meat. Horse tripe are also very popular among the townspeople. When you order “Motsuni(Japanese tripe stew)” at Japanese pubs, they often serve horsemeat.

---

Horsemeat has less smell and is easy to eat, and is low in calories and high in protein. It is also rich in iron. If you visit Fujikawaguchiko town, please try it once.
Tempura and Curry with rice are also popular.

In Fujikawaguchiko town, upland farming has developed rather than rice cultivation. For this reason, flour foods such as "Hoto" and udon noodle have long taken root. In the past, udon was a sacred thing to eat at ceremonial occasions. In the Showa era, in the Fujiyoshida city where the textile industry developed, people can enjoy a bowl of udon as a convenient lunch during work. These are the roots of today's "Yoshida-no-udon". After the war, many udon shops opened in the Fuji Five Lakes area. On the other hand, hoto was eaten as daily dinner in the past. Add noodles and vegetables such as root vegetables, potatoes, mushrooms to the soup stock, and add the taste with miso. People shared it with their family and cultivate vitality for tomorrow. Even nowadays, udon is loved by people as a lunch to eat between work and hoto is a home taste that everyone can enjoy.

Local sake and beer using wonderful water in Fujikawaguchiko

The snow that has accumulated on Mt. Fuji permeates the ground over a long period of time, and eventually reaches Fujikawaguchiko town as underground water and spring water. Let me introduce you to the local sake and local beer using the water.

“Kai-no-Kaiun” from the Edo era

The Ide Brewery, which has been in business for more than 300 years, began producing sake at the end of the Edo period around 1850. The tradition has been passed down to the present head, the 21st Ide Yogoemon. Enjoy the clear water of Mt. Fuji and the fine sake brewed in the severe cold of 850m above sea level.

Fragrant craft beer “Fujizakura-kogen-beer”

In 1997, Fujizakura-kogen-beer was made at a brewery in a forest at an altitude of 1000 meters. It is brewed using selected ingredients and high quality water from Mt. Fuji, with German technology. This beer has been highly evaluated in many beer contests.

Spring

Cherry blossoms are a symbol of the end of the long winter in Fujikawaguchiko. Due to its high altitude, its flowering is slower than in other parts of Japan, but you can enjoy the view of Mt. Fuji and cherry blossoms from various places in the town.

Spring Event Information

Lake Kawaguchiko Kojosai Festival (August 5)
Mt. Fuji Kawaguchiko Music Festival (mid-August)

Autumn

In November, autumn leaves spread from Lake Motosuko and Lake Shojiko to Lake Saiko and Lake Kawaguchiko, and the lakeside is brightly colored red and yellow. It is also in this season that Mt. Ashiwa is crowded with climbers.

Autumn Event Information

Fuji Sanroku Trail Run (late September or early October)
